Subject: Morning Consult Energy: Week in Review & What's Ahead

By Jack Fitzpatrick

Week in Review

Congress looks to repeal Obama administration regulations

- The Senate passed a resolution blocking a Securities and Exchange Commission requirement for energy companies to disclose payments to foreign governments.
- The Senate also passed a resolution blocking an Obama administration rule aimed at protecting streams from pollution from coal mining, while the House passed a resolution blocking an Obama administration rule limiting venting and flaring of methane from natural gas facilities.
- President Donald Trump signed an executive order requiring that two regulations be repealed for every new one introduced.

Trump nominees move forward

- Former Exxon Mobil Corp. CEO Rex Tillerson was confirmed as secretary of State.
- The Senate Environment and Public Works Committee voted to confirm Scott Pruitt to lead the Environmental Protection Agency, suspending committee rules in order to vote while Democrats boycotted the meeting.
- The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee voted in favor of confirming Rick Perry as Energy secretary and Rep. Ryan Zinke (R-Mont.) as Interior secretary. Each received support from four Democrats.

Army Corps signals approval for Dakota Access

- Sen. John Hoeven (R-N.D.) and Rep. Kevin Cramer (R-N.D.) said the acting secretary of the Army Corps of Engineers told them he will approve the Dakota Access pipeline.

What's Ahead

- The House Science Committee will hold a hearing on Tuesday on the future of the Environmental Protection Agency, including testimony from former EPA assistant administrator Jeff Holmstead and former Rep. Rush Holt (D-N.J.), who now leads the American Association for the Advancement of Science.
- The Senate Environment and Public Works Committee will hold a hearing Wednesday on modernizing the country's infrastructure.
- The House Natural Resources Committee meets Tuesday to consider committee rules and appoint committee staff.
